the law at any time when the Court chooses to pronounce centence. That being the case, I have no doubt the District Attorney will readily yield to the request. With those remarks we desire to withdraw the plea of not guity.

The District Attorney to the Clerk—Take the plea. The Clerk—Retchum, you withdraw your plea of not guity and plead guity. Is that your plea? Ketchum nodded in the affirmative.

The noticument to which he pleaded was one cherging him with defrauding he Importers' and Traders' Bank of the som of three hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

ENAMES OF THE DISTRICT ATTORNY.

The District Attorney said:—A great many of the remarks just made address themselves soiely to your Honor, with which I have nothing to do. The concern I have is in respect to moving for judgment. I am frank to say that I should not have moved for judgment at this time, for the reason that several persons have called upon me within the last ten days, asking that time should be given to them to examine Ketchum. It is usual in this sourt when parties who have represented large interests in which innocent persons are converned have been convicted that time is given to save the rights of the innocent. Your Honor has often given men time to arrange their property, for instance, for the benefit of their wives and children, and certainly for their creditors; but I beg to say this: that I understand here is an application enther the rights of innocent parties. "I understand the other many that is the nature, as I understand it, of a singulation—and honorable stipulation, in which the prosecution and it is in the nature, as I understand to the sentence; and it is in the nature, as I understand to the sentence; and it is in the nature, as I understand to the sentence; and it is in the nature, as I understand to the sentence; and it is in the nature, as I understand to the sentence; and it is in the nature, as I understand to the sentence of the rights of innocent parties." I understand the other side to say, "we desire a suspension

[From the Hartford Courant, Oct. 27.]

For nearly two months past some of our grocery dealers have been enabled to purchase molasses, teas, sugars, &c., at astonishing low prices, comparing with the usual market rates. It appears that a young man named Hopkins, a resident of Coventry in this State, has been engaged in the grocery business in Providence some time. He purchased extensively and by paying his bills promptly, established good credit. For three months past he has bought largely "on time," and has disposed of his stock at wholesale in the following manner:—To a brother in New York, who was in the secret, he rhipped part of his purchases, and a large amount came to this city, where it was received by his father, who left his farm in Coventry to attend to it. The latter hired a store on Morgan street, mear the corner of Charles, into which the goode as fast as they arrived were placed. The store was never opened for business only when some carman arrivad at the front door to carry away articles. Hopkins spent his time going about town, telling various stories to merchants, and soliciting their orders, his prices being from twenty-vire to fifty per cent below the market. Of course he found no difficulty in making sales; for there is a peculiar fascination about a "good bargain" which, with many men, influences the pocket without disturbing the conscience, and no questions were asked.

About ten days aspoyoung Hopkins left Providence suddenly, which opened the eyes of his creditors, and they year and no questions were asked.

THE WALL STREET, PROGRESSIA.

The season and the first t Inaugural Address of Governor Humph property. In the civil war just closed the troops that responded to the call and command of Mississippi have signalized all those high qualities that adorn the character of the soldier. By their valor, courage and heroic constancy, whether in camp, on the march or-amidst the carriage of the battle field, they have sustained her honor and glory, and made her name immortal. Many have returned to reined homes and fortunes. Others have fatlen upon the battle field, or have been mained or disabled for life. Many of them, and their families, and the widows and orphans of the dead, are in a state of destitution. The federal government has magnanimously thrown over the rebet soldier the mantle of oblivion for the past—but no pension from its coffers awaits him or his family—no "homestead" from its vast territories invites them to comfort and repose. To Mississippi, alone, can they look for assistance. Whether it was right or wrong to call the soldier to arms, it cannot be wrong to make such processin for them as will relieve them and their families from want and satering, and scare to their children the means of education. Justice and goalcade dismaid if Homer and magnanismity will below it. From a long retirement to private life, and absence from the State for the last four years, it am ignorant of much of her legislative history, and feel incompetent to advise farther as to the proper domestic policy rendered necessary by the altered, distracted and desolated condition of the people. To you, gentlemen, its wisely rendered necessary by the altered, distracted and desolated condition of the people of operation is the effort to restore and advance the welfare and happiness of the people of Mississippi.

Ruth Blay was hung at Portsmouth, N. H., ninety-seven years ago, for child murder, and it is a singular fact that the person who caused her execution is still alive. She was a school teacher, and Mra. Betsey Eastman, of Salisbury, N. H., now 103 years old, was one of her scholars, and still remembers and relates the circumstance. The teacher was absent one day, and Mra. E., then a girl of six years, while at play in the schoolhouse saw a loose board in the floor, which she raised from motives of curiosity, and there discovered the remains of a dead infant. She told what she had seen, and an investigation showed it to be the child of the teacher, who murdered it to conceal its birth. She was tried, convicted and hung.

Livingston, of the United Sates army, belonging to this city. He first enlisted in the Mozarts (Fortieth New York), and afterwards was an orderly servent in the Thirty-fifth Massachusetts regiment, Captain Bartlett's company, and was promoted from that, first to a lieutenan of volunteers, and finally to be a captain in a colored regiment in New Orleans—the Eleventh Rhode Island heavy artillery. He was English by birth, some thirty-fifth years old.

The same paper gives the following respecting a truly venerable lady:—There is now living at Harvard probably the oldest person in New England of whose birth and age there is authentic record. This is Mrs. Rebecca Huse, who was born in Groton, in 1759—one hundred and sky years ago—according to the record of the first parish of that town, where the original entry of her birth at that date may be seen. She has always resided in the immediate vicinity of her birth place, removing from Groton, at the age of fifteen, to the adjoining town of Harvard and into the house she still occupies. Her husband has long since deceased, and of a large family of children there is but a single daughter living, herself a venerable lady, with whom she makes her home. The father of Mrs. Huse served as a soldier in the old Revolution, and an uncle was killed in one of the early battles of that struggle. This venerable relic of a bygone age still retains to a remarkable degree of perfection her sense of sight and hearing, being but slightly deaf, and is remarkably active, making her own fire in the morning and attending through the day to a large part of her household duties. I'll the present year she has kept and carred for a cow and attended to some gardening. She receives her many visitors with gentle courtesy, and appears to delight in recalling for their benefit or pleasure somes and incidents of her well remembered experience of a full century. She is an humble and devout Christian, and though to all appearance she bids fair to survive yet some years, is apparently patiently awaiting the final summons to her final and well carned rest.

MOSTAVIDEO, July 27, 1865.

She is placed in a position that the Capitain pointed out on the chart, viz: Flores light N 26 W, and the Mount N 62 W, a position differing about 2½ miles to the SE of where she is marked in the government chart, and although it may be a very good one for the vessel herself, as she gets protection by the bank from southwesterly winds, it is anything but as good as where she is marked on the charts for shipping working up or down the river.
